TOWNSHIP EXPERIENCE

Shisanyama

Townships offer visitors a glimpse of another side of Durban. Originally established by the apartheid government to house black people working in the city, townships have become sprawling and vibrant neighbours in the post apartheid era where an exciting new urban African culture is being born.

No visit to Durban is complete without visiting one of these townships. Tours guided by knowledgeable locals will provide the visitor with the opportunity to immerse themselves in the rich community township lifestyle and experience the pulse of this vibrant culture.

Guests must visit a local Shisanyama hangout, to mingle with the locals, drink and eat together in a lively atmosphere. "Shisanyama" (which means braaiing the meat) is a unique culinary adventure that are fun and popular amongst the locals. This concept is growing and are widely prepared at many of the township cafes.

END OCTOBER – MARCH 2012

- The Barn Swallows: Every year towards the end of October – mid April, these migratory birds start to appear at Lake Victoria in Mount Moreland, just inland from Umhloti. Initially small flocks arrive which soon swell to thousands and then millions. By November there can be anything from 3 – 5 million barn swallows roosting in the indigenous ‘Phragmites’ reeds. Every evening, half an hour before sunset, the Barnyard Swallows come home to roost. Bring along a picnic or sundowners, chairs, mozzies repellent, blankets and enjoy this phenomenal sight. ## SAFETY

Durban's Central Business District in partnership with the Metro Police, South African Police (SAP) and Tourist Protection Unit have made a considerable effort to safeguard tourists against crime, from surveillance cameras and improved lighting on the beachfront to security guards watching over most large shopping centres and many businesses. Nonetheless visitors should take precautions they would in any major city: avoid carrying large sums of cash, having cameras or video cameras loose, or leaving belongings unattended. Take special precautions at lonely lookout points, on the beachfront or in market areas where pick pocketing can occur, and take advice from locals on where to go after dark.
